Nelly Edwards, born in England in 1897, is believed to have been the first woman architect practising in Johannesburg, working from the 1920s onwards. She registered with the Institute of South African Architects in 1927. One can find her work scattered throughout the city, in suburbs like Berea, Kensington, Auckland Park, Forest Town and Parkview, to name just a few. Our grading of Parkview revealed her name on the records of many of the houses built in the 1930s. She is now a household name in our charming suburb! Run, cycle, or walk her footsteps through Parkview.
